BRIEF BIOGRAPHY

2015 recipient of a named professorship at the Loyola University College of Business, 2014 recipient of the Faculty Award for Outstanding Research, and 2017 recipient of the Loyola University First Year Seminar Teaching Excellence Award.

Dr. Weinberg's research centers on developing a better understanding of the deep-level psychological mechanisms that improve the outcomes of interpersonal workplace relationships. His research interests include leadership; designing, implementing, and analyzing mentoring programs; maximizing the benefits of workplace diversity; gaining social capital through networking; improving teamwork processes; and scale development. He regularly presents his research to global audiences at the annual meetings of the Academy of Management and Southern Management Association, and has published in a number of well-respected outlets, including The Journal of Management, Communication Research, and The Leadership Quarterly. His 2015 article in the Journal of Marketing, Theory, and Practice on the social construction of lone wolfism was elected the journal's "Article of the Year." Further, Dr. Weinberg has earned a respectable global teaching repertoire, with student teaching evaluations averaging 4.73 out of 5. He will be participating in an international faculty exchange program hosted jointly through the Research Foundation of the State University of New York and the Singapore Institute of Management.

Curriculum Development, Guest Lecturing, and Extra-Role Teaching Experience:

Loyola University New Orleans, New Orleans, Louisiana

New Curriculum Development (undergraduate) – MGT 493: Research Seminar in Organizational Studies, and Corporate Social Responsibility, Winter-Spring 2012 & Summer 2015

- In order to meet the needs of Loyola’s management majors, those students dual-majoring in management and marketing, and the many interdisciplinary students minoring in management, I developed a series of senior-level elective courses that cross-list as management and marketing courses. The course Corporate Social Responsibility introduces students to the stakeholder perspective of management, different forms of corporate social responsibility (CSR), and how CSR relates to business strategy. The course Research Seminar in Organizational Studies empowers students to explore researchable and testable questions regarding organizational practices, and helps develop learners’ skills in the process of systematic and practical academic inquiry. Both courses are writing-intensive, with assignments that involve critical analyses, conceptual development, and discussion of real-world practical implications.

New Curriculum Development (MBA/graduate) – MGT 700: Leadership and Organizational Behavior, and MGT 760: Strategic Leadership, Fall-Winter 2014 & Winter 2015

- I was invited to by the College of Business’s Associate Dean for Graduate Studies to design a core course for the MBA program’s revised curriculum. The course’s two modules, Leading People and Leading Organizations, challenge students to develop the skills to analyze and address leadership challenges, opportunities and knowledge to create a sustainable organization with world-class performance. This class has evolved into the current offering, Leadership & Organizational Behavior.

New Curriculum Development (MBA/graduate) – MGT 800, MGT 793: Managerial Consulting and Applied Analytics, Spring-Summer 2014

- I was invited to by the College of Business’s Associate Dean for Graduate Studies to design this course, which challenges MBA students to analyze organizational data in such a way that they could develop consultation plans and provide advice to managerial decision-makers. This course was designed to act as a bridge between two of the MBA program’s specialized tracks, namely Leadership and HR, and New Venture Capital. The latest iteration of this class involves partnership with a large public-sector organization with the goal of analyzing data and making recommendations regarding employee turnover and retention.

New Curriculum Development (undergraduate) – MGT T121: Dishing it Up: Food, Business, and Community in New Orleans, Summer 2012

- I was asked jointly by Loyola University’s Vice Provost for Academic Affairs and the College of Business Dean to design a seminar course that would introduce students to college-level thinking and learning in an experiential manner and to support Loyola’s Jesuit tradition under the overarching themes of “thinking critically” and “acting justly.” After my course proposal was accepted by the Office of Academic Affairs, I attended a 1-week workshop during which time I specified course objectives and finalized the design of course assignments, centering on the topics of critical thinking, information literacy, oral & written communication, and compassionate engagement with the world.

Curriculum Coordinator, Business Communications, Fall 2010 to Winter 2011

- Coordinated and developed the curriculum taught by all Business Communications instructors to all College of Business and Music Industry students at the university. Provided instructional support and guidance to part-time and adjunct faculty.

Case Competition Consultant – Loyola College of Business Team, Fall 2010 and Fall 2011

- Provided training support, suggestions, and feedback to Loyola's student team members as they prepared for an upcoming national case competition

Guest Lecturer – Sociology 260: Race, Class, & Schools, Fall 2015

Guest Lecturer – BA 101: Business Communications, Summer 2014

- Presented to Associate Dean Angie Hoffer's class a structured, interactive lesson on the topics of gendered communication including characteristics of masculine and feminine speech, the social construction of gender, sex composition in the workplace, and the effects of gendered communication on career success.

Guest Lecturer – MUSB 350: Music Enterprise Management, Fall 2010

- Provided a structured, yet interactive presentation on preparing for, using visual aids with, and delivery of effective business presentations to Dr. Kendra Reed's students.

University of Georgia, Athens, Georgia

Curriculum Development – MGMT 5980: Leadership, Summer 2007

- When this course became a mandatory part of the Management department's undergraduate curriculum, I paired with Dr. Melenie Lankau to develop an intensive course curriculum that was followed by Management department Leadership professors.

Judge – ILAD 5100: Leading from Within, Spring 2009

- Judged Case Competitions held by UGA students enrolled in this Institute for Leadership Advancement course

Guest Lecturer – MGMT 5980: Leadership, Fall 2008 and Spring 2009

- Lectured in Dr. Melenie Lankau's section of the Leadership course on the topics of working with and leading individuals with diverse learning and communication styles

Guest Lecturer – MGMT 3000 & 3000H: Management of Organizations and Individuals, Spring 2008 and Fall 2008

- Lectured numerous times in both Dr. Robert Hirschfeld's large lecture hall classes (approximately 300 students per section) and Dr. Melenie Lankau's honors-level courses on various management topics
